

I would like to file a comment against the proposed proceeding. I feel this stifle innovation and could lead to some manufacturers to exit the amateur market. This market is already so small that further regulations, especially unnecessary ones, would make it uneconomical to produce new products. Finally, I feel that if "easily repairable in the field" radios were needed and or wanted one of the current manufacturers would have already stepped up and filled that need.

Barry Schieferstein KW8W